

34

73. The method as recited in claim 72 further comprising the step of placing a porous screen over the wound prior to said locating step.

35

74. The method of Claim 72 wherein said maintaining step is conducted in alternating periods of application and non-application of the negative pressure.

36

75. The method of claim 74 wherein each of said alternating periods is about 5 minutes.

37

76. The method of claim 72 wherein said selected stage of healing is cessation of partial thickness burn progression.

38

77. The method of claim 72 wherein said selected stage of healing is a reduction in bacterial density in the wound of at least 50%.

39

78. The method as recited in claim 72 wherein said reduced pressure is from about 2 in. Hg below atmospheric pressure to about 7 in. Hg below atmospheric pressure.

40

79. A method of promoting attachment of a skin flap onto a wound comprising steps of:

- (a) applying reduced pressure to a region of skin adjacent to the wound,
- (b) forming the flap by detaching skin from said region,
- (c) attaching the flap to the wound, and
- (d) applying and maintaining reduced pressure to the flap to promote blood circulation within the flap.

Remarks

New Claims 38-79 have been added to more completely claim certain aspects of the present invention. In particular, Claims 38-78 have been added to cover the aspect of the present invention wherein a support means or supporting step are used to hold "said cover out of contact with the wound."

Support for Claims 38-78 can be found, for example, in the specification at page 14, lines 15-19; page 23, line 34 through page 24, line 3; page 24, line 24 through page 25, line 10; and Figures 1, 5, and 6.

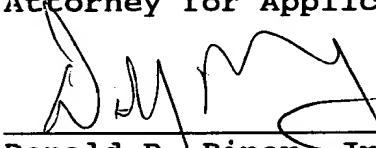

New Claim 79 has been added to cover the aspect of the present invention wherein reduced pressure is applied to promote attachment of a skin flap. Support for Claim 79 can be found, for example, in the specification at page 28, line 30 through page 29, line 19 and in Example 4 (page 35, line 20 through page 37, line 34).

In light of the foregoing, no new matter has been added by the amendment.
